

We Respond

www.majellan.media

ENTRANCE ANTIPHON (or a hymn) All that you have done to us, O Lord, you have done with true judgement, for we have sinned against you and not obeyed your commandments. But give glory to your name and deal with us according to the bounty of your mercy.

RESPONSORIAL PSALM (Ps 18)

ANTIPHON: The precepts of the Lord give joy to the heart.

RESPONSE: The precepts of the Lord give joy to the heart.

LECTOR: The law of the Lord is perfect, it revives the soul. The rule of the Lord is to be trusted, it gives wisdom to the simple. R.

LECTOR: The fear of the Lord is holy, abiding for ever. The decrees of the Lord are truth and all of them just. R.

LECTOR: So in them your servant finds instruction; great reward is in their keeping. But who can detect all his errors? From hidden faults acquit me. R.

LECTOR: From presumption restrain your servant and let it not rule me. Then shall I be blameless, clean from grave sin. R.

GOSPEL ACCLAMATION Alleluia, alleluia! Your word, O Lord, is truth: make us holy in the truth. Alleluia!

COMMUNION ANTIPHON (or a hymn) Remember your word to your servant, O Lord, by which you have given me hope. This is my comfort when I am brought low.

Or

By this we came to know the love of God: that Christ laid down his life for us; so we ought to lay down our lives for one another.

Opening ourselves up to others

26 September 2021 26 Sunday Year B

We might think that, as a general rule, belonging to a group would be a good thing. However, today's Scriptures teach us that belonging to a group might not be all positive. As members of a group, we might advance the group's interests to the detriment of others outside the group. We might be so protective of the group's achievements that we do not want anyone else to do the same things – simply because that person is "not one of us".

James' letter is particularly severe on the rich – not because they were wealthy but because of what they were doing together as a group. He warned them to expect divine retribution because they were cheating their workers of their wages and exploiting their workers' powerlessness to support their own luxurious and opulent lifestyles.

Pope John Paul II called this kind of belonging "communion in sin". It involves people working together to advance their own interests by exploiting others. In such cases, injustices are perpetuated systematically and efficiently for the benefit of the few.

Both the disciples of Moses and the disciples of Jesus felt they belonged to exclusive groups formed by their masters for good purposes. They felt threatened by the success of others outside their circle doing what they felt should properly belong to them. They demanded that any outsider be stopped from doing what he or she was doing, simply because such a person was not one of the group, "not one of us".

The responses of both Moses and Jesus are very instructive. They challenged their disciples to see the marvellous works of God's Spirit, which can move in totally unexpected ways. They challenged them to respect God's freedom and choice about who should be working for the kingdom and truth. The group is invited not to be threatened, but to be open to outsiders who do things differently, and to acknowledge with humility that truth and goodness are larger than we are.

Belonging to groups and organisations will always be part of our human experience. While it is natural that we feel a sense of pride in the groups to which we belong, we need to ask questions about how any particular group is forming us as human beings. Is the group helping us grow towards true goodness and truth, or not?

It is natural for us to want to belong. But we do well to reflect on how the group is operating. Is our group too exclusive? Should we be more open to others?

The process that led to recent VAD legislation passing in the Q'ld parliament was instructive for a number of reasons. One thing it made clear is that the Church doesn't have the same social profile or public voice it once had in this country.

We're no longer a powerful voice to be listened to; & through the VAD process we weren't really listened to. We were tolerated at best & managed as a stakeholder but nothing more. In the end our concerns were set aside & our criticisms of the draft bill disregarded. The Premier declared that the government had listened to Q'lders, but in fact they failed to listen to many religious voices, just as they failed to listen to the First Nations peoples. As Plenary Council looks to the future of the Church in this country, we need to face the facts of our current social profile & public voice. We're not what we were, & there's no way back. Nor is there much point in hand-wringing or re-crimination. The question for the Church now is, Where might we be in the future? Or even where should we be. That's a spiritual question, not a political one & will require us to listen to the voice of the Holy Spirit, as we're seeking to do through the Plenary Council. That's what will free us to become the prophetic Church we are called to be.
